Unit 1 Food and personal objects

Food is an elemental part of every culture, so it has special characteristics, according to its geographical location. To point out some of those differences, read the following text about food in different cultures.

I. Read carefully the text and underline the countries that are mentioned.

Food around the world

The kind of food we eat depends on which part of the world we live in, or which part of our country we live in. For example, in the south of China they eat rice, but in the North, they eat noodles. In Japan, people eat a lot of fish and other seafood. But in the middle of the United States, away from the sea, people do not eat so much fish, they eat more red meat and chicken. In Central Europe, people eat hundreds of different kinds of sausages.

<https://www.theydrawandcook.com/illustrations/12591-food-around-the-world>

<https://trips2spice.wordpress.com/2017/06/20/the-best-countries-for-food-around-the-world/>

In North America, Australia, and Europe there are two or more courses to every meal, and people eat with knives and forks. In China, all the food is together on the table, and they eat with chopsticks. In parts of India and the Middle East, people use their fingers and bread to pick up the food.

Nowadays, it is possible to transport food easily from one part of the world to the other. We can eat what we like, when we like it, at any time of the year. Bananas come from Central America or Africa, rice comes from California or Thailand; strawberries come from Chile or Mexico. Food is very big business. But people in poor countries are still hungry, and people in rich countries eat too much.

American Headway1 Student's Book p. 67

Vocabulary: Courses = dishes

II. Complete the table with the food you find in the text and the picture.

Fruit	Meat	Dairy products	Grain products	Other kind of food

III. Answer the questions with information from the text.

1. Where do people eat a lot of fish?

2. Why do people in the middle of the US eat more chicken and red meat?

3. How many courses are there in China?

4. How do people eat in the Middle East?

5. Why can we now eat more things at any time of the year?

Grammar

Countable and uncountable nouns.

Look at the next image.

In this image you see:

An orange *Coffee *Milk *Orange juice *Eggs *Bacon *Pancakes

These things, or nouns are countable or uncountable.

Countable nouns are things that we can count: 1,2,3,4, etc. They can be singular or plural.

An orange *Two eggs *Ten pancakes

Remember that for the singular form we use “a” or “an” before the noun (a banana, an apple), and for the plural, we add an “-s” at the end of the noun and a number to indicate the amount (five bananas, two apples).

Uncountable nouns are things that you cannot count, such as liquids, grains, powders, etc. For example:

✗ Two milks ✗ Three bacons ✗ Four coffees

You need to add a quantifier or a container to be able to count the item.

A carton of milk

A glass of orange juice

a cup of coffee

We can also use “some” in order to describe the existence of more of one thing whether is countable or uncountable.

I have some fruit, some bacon, and some eggs for breakfast.

QUANTIFIERS

Here are some forms to add a QUANTIFIER to a COUNTABLE noun.

The + expresses the quantity from less to more.

an orange	a few oranges	some oranges	many oranges	a lot of oranges
a lemon	a few lemons	some lemons	many lemons	a lot of lemons

I have an orange.

I have some peaches.

COUNTABLE

I have many apples.

I have a lot of vegetables.

Here are some forms to add a QUANTIFIER to an UNCOUNTABLE noun.

Uncountable nouns are those nouns that we cannot count, so we cannot pluralize them, we use quantifiers to express quantity. Look at the examples of the table:

The (+) expresses the quantity from more to less and the (-) the nonexistence.

++++++	There is too much water. There is a lot of water.
+++	There is some orange juice.
++	There is little / isn't much coffee
-----	There isn't any apple juice.

A glass with too much milk.
 A glass with a lot of milk.

I want some tea.

UNCOUNTABLE

There is very little water in the glass.
 There isn't much water in the glass.

There isn't any soda.

IV. Write "a", "an" or "some" before each word. Then write C for the countable nouns and UC for the uncountable nouns.

 0. some broccoli UC	 1. _____ tomatoes _____	 2. _____ yogurt _____	 3. _____ icecream _____

CONTAINERS

You cannot count food as milk, orange juice, sugar, or honey, unless they are in a container, for example, in a pot, in a bottle, in a bowl; or you can express a specific quantity in kilos, liters, or pounds. To talk about those quantities, we use expressions like these for uncountable nouns:

 ...kilos of...	 a glass of...	 ..bottles of...	 a cup of...	 ... jars of...
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

 two packages of	 ..bags of...	 a box of	 2 bowls of...	 ... tubes of...
 a loaf of (bread)...	1/4 a quart of...	 3 pieces of...	 some slices of...	 a pot of

You can combine quantifiers and containers to be very specific.

A full American breakfast consists of three pieces of grilled bacon, two fried eggs, a glass of orange juice and a cup of coffee with a little cream, a lot of pancakes, and some slices of bread.

V. Write two sentences for each picture, use quantities and containers. Look at the example.

 fish	I have some fish for lunch. (QUANTIFIER) I have a bowl of fish and rice for lunch. (CONTAINER)
 lemonade

 fruit
 coffee
 marmalade

VI. Some friends are talking about food. Complete the three dialogues with an expression of quantity or a container from the box. Then practice the dialogues with a friend.

bottle	some	loaf	pieces	slices	package
cartons	a little of	kilos	bowl	can	boxes	a piece

2. Betty: I have a _____ of vegetable soup and some _____ of chicken nuggets for lunch. What do you have?

Elliot: Thanks.

3. Sara: Let us go to the supermarket, so check the list. We need two _____ of onions and three _____ of cookies.

Michael: Ok, we also need three _____ of milk and a _____ of oil.

QUESTIONS

There is some cream for the soup.

X. Read the text about nutrition.

Food

Food supplies you with energy, and with the materials your body needs for growing, repairing wounds, and staying healthy. Energy is needed for everything that goes on in the body. Your muscles use energy when you move, and your brain uses energy when you think. You use energy even when you are completely relaxed or asleep. This energy keeps your body warm.

Carbohydrates are our main source of energy. They are in sugary food such as sweets, honey, jam and in starchy food such as bread, potatoes, and rice. The other energy-rich nutrients are fats. Fatty foods include butter and cream, which come from animals, and oils from plants such as olive oil, sunflower oil or maize seed oil. Fats can supply twice as much energy as carbohydrates. But instead of using them directly, the body keeps fats as an energy store. Fat is mostly stored under the skin.

Vocabulary:

Starchy food: alimentos almidonados

What is Reality TV?

So, what is Reality TV? Reality TV is the projection of people's lives in real or fabricated situations and can range from documentary style, informative shows, entertainment shows based on the lives of reality TV actors, game shows, contests, talent auditions, adventure programs, housing shows, philanthropy, love and dating shows, shows which outline the inner workings of a particular industry and so much more. Thus, it can be difficult to outline what exactly reality TV is and what reality television is not.

Therefore, in answering what is reality TV, the answer can be any form of television that touches on the reality of people's lives. While many fictional shows do in fact touch on real issues or portray real stories; reality TV is generally reserved for non-professional actors and stays focused on the lives of the actors as their lives are currently happening.

My town

Hi Friends! My name's Pedro and I live in Tuxtla Gutierrez, Chiapas. It is in the south of Mexico. It is a big and very nice town. About 604,000 people live here.

There are a lot of shops, supermarkets, and malls. You can buy everything you need. There are several banks in the malls and main streets. There are six libraries and some police stations.

There are five big parks, where children can play because there are playgrounds. My favorite park is called "Joyo Mayu"; it is a name in Zoque language and means "May's flower". I like it because it has a lot of trees, cafeterias and you can do picnics, but the most amazing thing is the lake. It is in the northeast of the city and it is next to the sports park "Caña Hueca", where you can practice some sports and the river Sabinal goes through.

As it is a touristic city, there are a lot of hotels, restaurants, and cafés. There are also some interesting museums that you have to visit when you come, such as the Marimba Museum, the Chiapas Science and Technology Museum, the Paleontology's Museum and the Botanical Museum.

There are a lot of elementary and high schools, as well as colleges. There is also a cathedral in the city center, the Cathedral of St Marcus and there are also a lot of churches in the town.

K 	L 	M 	N

Grammar

To express ideas that refer to daily activities we use PRESENT SIMPLE. Look at the conjugation. The pronoun “I” is the 1st person, “you” the second and obviously; “he”, “she”, “it” belong to the 3rd person and pay special attention to the conjugation.

AFFIRMATIVE FORM:

Subject	Verb
I	learn
You	learn
He/ She/ It	learns
We	learn
You	learn
They	learn

Daily Routines

In the morning

I get up at 7 o'clock.

You have a shower.

Peter gets dressed.

We have breakfast.

Mary brushes her teeth.

They leave home.

The pronouns that belong to the third person are: HE, SHE and IT, these pronouns need "-s". These are the rules when adding "-s" to the verbs for the correct conjugation of present simple:

a) visit visits	-“s” final in the majority of verbs: cleans s , sleeps s .
b) hope hopes	Verbs ending in "e" just add -s: die s , live s , close s .
c) catch catches	--es – Verbs ending in -ch, -sh,-s, -x,-z, add "es". wash washes pass passes fix fixes
d) study studies	Verbs ending with a consonant + y , change the y to i and add -es : try—tr ies , fry—fr ies , dry—dr ies .
e) pay pays	The verb ending with a vowel + y , add just -s : play—plays, say--says, stay--stays, buy--buys, enjoy—buys.
f) Verb “have”	Changes to has : She has a new job. He has a problem. My dog has a new toy.

Remember the correct way to express the action of eating (comer):

have breakfast	has lunch	have dinner

I have breakfast at 6:00.	Jennie has lunch with her friends every day.	My grandparents have dinner at 8:00.
---------------------------	----------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------

How to Behind the Lens: life as a Nature Photographer.

Ingo Arndt is a professional photographer and wildlife specialist.

By Peter Kolonia

March 8,2011

Ingo Arndt, 42, a wildlife specialist and contributing photographer to the German edition of Geo Magazine, spends more than half the year on the road, photographing animals everywhere from Alaska to Antarctica and beyond. He took a few hours recently to share insights with Senior Editor Peter Kolonia.

What are your favorite animals to work with?

Mountain gorillas. They´re so human- like that you can watch them for hours. From their expressions and body language, you can sense what they´ rethinking and feeling -much more so than other animals. It´s fascinating how close they are to us. They´re big and strong but gentle too. I´ve photographed them maybe 25 times over the years, at distances of usually about 20 feet, and I´ve never felt threatened.

What´s the most difficult animal to photograph?

Monkeys. They never really look in your directions, they don´t want to make eye contact, they´re often shy, and most of them live deep in the rain forest, where it´s usually hot with high humidity and lots of insects. It can be hard to find them, and the light in the rain forest is usually dim. The best conditions are under a light cloud cover that diffuses the sunlight but doesn´t weaken it much. This can be hard to find. Many monkeys and the mountain gorillas, too, are black. It´s hard to get light in their eyes.

What´s your job? Or What do you do for living?

I diversify. I take photos of landscapes for calendars and posters. Income from my wildlife is divided between stock photography and editorial work assigned by magazines like Geo. I also create exhibition projects like the "Animal Masses" show that´s traveling around Europe now. It has over 40 large-scale prints of massive groups of animals, from which I sell prints, posters, calendars, and cards. Several of the pictures you're publishing here [like the penguins, opposite] were taken for "Animal Masses."

Read the text. Answer the questions-

Capital Cities

Every country has a capital city. This is where the government – the offices of the people who run the country — can be found. The capital city is often the most important in the country, with the most people and more businesses, shops, and factories than anywhere else. This is not always so, because some countries have built their capitals specially, such as Canberra in Australia and Brasilia in Brazil.

Cities are where people can find work and employers can find workers. One reason is that they have a better chance of finding a job in the city. Also, there are usually better services in cities than in poor rural areas. Cities have more entertainments, like top sports teams, theatres and clubs.

An advantage of a city is that people can find work and enjoy urban services. But the more people there are and the more cars they own, the more crowded the city's roads become. Yet people still want to drive. Subways, motorways and railways are expensive to build in cities.

Cars and factories cause pollution. The quality of waterways and air gets poorer. In cities surrounded by hills such as Los Angeles or Mexico City, the pollutants cannot escape. This is bad for people's health. It can also ruin buildings, since air pollution carries chemicals such as sulphur, which attack stone.

Answer the questions:

1. What is one characteristic of a capital city?

2. What can you find in a city?

3. Which is one advantage of living in a city?

4. Which is the problem of transportation in a city?

5. What's the problem in Los Angeles or Mexico?

Read the sentences and decide if they are T (true) or F (false).

6. Examples of expensive cities are Canberra and Brazil. _____
7. Good opportunities of finding a good job are in a city. _____
8. Transportation systems are necessary in big cities. _____
9. Pollution is a problem in all cities surrounded by mountains. _____
10. The quality of water is excellent in a city. _____

Unit 4 Sharing On-Going Activities

In a day, we do rutinary activities that are repeated constantly during the week. There are other actions that are happening in the moment of speaking. These activities are not the same, because you can usually do something that is different from an activity that you do at the moment.

I. Read the following questions about the topic of “Vacations”. If it is possible, discuss them with someone else.

Which vacations do you prefer: Summer or winter vacations? Why did you choose that option? _____

Apart of not going to school, what’s the best part of vacations? You can answer with ideas like: “I love vacations because I can stay in bed longer.” “I like vacations because I don’t have homework to do”. _____

II. This is what a family is doing during a common vacation afternoon. Read the text and match the sentences with the images.

At the moment, I’m sitting on a bench eating some ice-cream (1). My dog is playing with other dogs, they are running after a tennis ball (2). Mom is looking after my little brother. He is jumping the rope (3). Dad is playing domino with his friends in the park little tables (4). The sun is shining (5), the squirrels are eating (6), other kids are playing (7). III. Look at the comic-strip. Answer the questions.

<https://garfield.com/comic/2001/07/25>

1. What's happening with Garfield and Odie? _____
2. What is Garfield thinking? _____
3. What is Odie doing? _____

What is happening in this moment in the comic-strip? Garfield is getting upset, he is complaining because Odie is doing an annoying breathing noise. The time that expresses something that is happening in the moment we are speaking is called PRESENT CONTINUOUS or PRESENT PROGRESSIVE because it expresses a continuous action in progress. For example: In this moment, what are you doing?

"I am reading the English Guide".

"I am learning for my exam".

<https://www.aulaplaneta.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/03/enfamilia57.jpg>

Look at the image and analyze the use of present continuous:

It's important to notice that the present continuous is within the present time, it's exactly a segment of the "present", like a cut. See how these two sentences contrast:

I am a student. I study high school at CCH Sur. (Present Simple)

Now I am learning for an important exam. I am reading and answering this study guide. – This is a segment of your present life, what you are doing "now". It's expressed with present continuous.

This is John and her friend Sarah. Read what he is doing.

John is traveling around Germany. He's now in Berlin. He is staying with his friend Sarah because she lives there. They are taking a walk along a legendary place: The Branderburger Gate.

Sarah knows a lot about Germany because she is studying European History.

John is having a great time because Sarah knows the city perfectly.

The present continuous expresses actions taking place at the moment:

John is traveling around Germany.

If you read carefully the previous sentence, you can notice that this tense is formed by two verbs: "is" and "traveling". Let's study the formation of the present continuous:

subject + verb "to be" + verb ending in "ing" + complement

Remember that the verb to be can be conjugated in three different forms according to the subject (am, is, are). The verb to be also works as the auxiliary verb for the present continuous. It means you need am, is, or are to write negative sentences and questions. Study the following tables to see more in detail.

AFFIRMATIVE	NEGATIVE
I am reading	I am not reading
You are reading	You are not reading
He/ She/ It is reading	He/ She/ It is not reading
We / You/ They are reading	We/ You/ They are not reading

Study the rules to form the gerund of the verbs:

*When the verb ends in “-e”, take it out and add “-ing”. come - coming	*When the verb has a short vowel sound before an ending consonant, double the ending consonant. sit — sitting	*When the verb ends “-ie”, change the ending to “y”. lie - lying
*When the verb ends in “-ee”, “-oe” “-ye” do not make any changes (for example: Agree, canoe, dye). agree — agreeing	Do not double the “-w”, “-y” and “-x”. mix — mixing	CULTURAL NOTE: The “l” after a vowel is always doubled in British English, but not in American English. British: travel=travelling American: travel= traveling

Grammar

Present Simple vs. Present Continuous

It's common that we think about the difference between the Present Simple and the Present Continuous. Study this information:

George is playing roller hockey now. He is participating in a National Tournament.

George is a sports teacher. He teaches in a public high school. He works from Monday to Friday.

In this moment, he is kicking a penalty.

Use the Present Simple to talk about routines or activities you do on a REGULAR BASIS, for example:

George is a sports teacher. He teaches in a public high school.

He works from Monday to Friday.

Use the Present Continuous to describe the actions that you are doing AT THE MOMENT, for example:

He is kicking a penalty.

A) Study the tables to see the differences in terms of form.

how are you? I'm fine, enjoying my trip in Copenhagen. It's a beautiful and interesting city. The old haven has the most beautiful houses! I'm taking many photos of them. I'm staying at a youth hostel outside the city center because the accommodation is very expensive. But it's O.K., I'm traveling by public transportation and I see more of the city. The language is difficult but I'm learning a couple of words.

See you soon.

Best wishes,

John
